

My questions for tomorrow

My agenda, and the ideas I want to bring.

MY QUESTIONS

1. What exactly is a "vegan ankle strap", and how do we want to position it in the market?
2. What is the cotton pouch for, and what purpose does it serve?
3. Recycled fabric and organic materials: I love this direction. Adidas and Nike do recycled in their sneakers. For organic, are we thinking hemp? What else could we use?
4. Email: are we running an email campaign, and do you have a customer or contact list yet? I can help here.
5. Community-focused tone: how do we actually get the community involved?
6. Will we integrate your personal Instagram (@lucywayne__) with Sportif?
7. What are we calling it: Sportif, Sportif Collection, or Le Sport Collectif? Can we lock the name, and where is the trademark at?

Ideas I can bring

Email

- Start a pre-launch waitlist now, so we collect emails before September.
- Give people a reason to sign up: early access, a founding-customer discount, or an exclusive launch colourway.
- Aim for around 1,000 signups before launch (it proves demand and seeds day-one sales).
- Set up Shopify plus Klaviyo for the sign-up form and an automatic welcome and launch flow (I can do this).
- A short welcome series: the story, the colours, behind-the-scenes, then the launch offer.
- Pull in any contacts you already have (press, PT clients, your network) to seed the list.

What is Klaviyo? An email tool that plugs into Shopify, collects sign-ups, and sends the welcome and launch emails automatically. It also shows who opened and bought. Free to start while the list is small.

Community

- Founder behind-the-scenes content (the Kikiva style you love): sampling, colour choices, packing orders.
- Repost and feature real customers, their photos and videos.
- A founding-members or early-access group with small perks.
- Let the community help pick a colour or print, great engagement, and it ties to the pattern idea.
- Seed Sydney pilates instructors and micro-creators as ambassadors.
- Studio partnerships, and the launch event in Double Bay or Bondi.
- A simple, ownable hashtag and a "share your Sportif morning" prompt.