

What we do, and why

The step by step to launch. Each step, and why it matters.

STAGE 1 . Get ready (now)

1 Decide the fabric, the price, and the gift-pouch threshold.

Why: We cannot build the store, make any claims, or run ads without a finished product and a price.

2 Open the shop and the email list.

Why: A Shopify coming-soon page plus the Klaviyo welcome email, so we start collecting emails today. The list is the one audience we truly own.

3 Set up one Instagram hub and the wholesale kit.

Why: One place to grow the audience, plus a simple line sheet so the gyms Lucy knows can stock us.

STAGE 2 . Build the audience (now to July)

4 Post on a steady rhythm, batch-filmed with Lucy.

Why: Brands are built by showing up consistently. Filming in batches means a busy week never goes quiet.

5 Put bands on instructors and creators to use and tag.

Why: With about 900 followers, their audiences are how we actually reach people.

6 Run a small amount of ads for follows and signups.

Why: Organic reach alone is too slow from a standing start.

7 Start selling into Lucy's gyms.

Why: Warm, fast revenue while the online side is still growing.

STAGE 3 . Warm up for launch (July to August)

8 Film the bands arriving and lean into what works.

Why: Real founder moments convert, and we put effort where it pays off.

9 Give the email list a first look and a founding offer.

Why: Makes subscribers feel special and ready to buy on day one.

10 Order batch 2 early.

Why: The restock takes 35 days, so this keeps us from selling out and going dark.

STAGE 4 . Launch (September)

11 Hold the launch event with local press.

Why: A moment, content to capture, and real credibility.

12 Sell the 500 as a limited founding drop, with a waitlist when low.

Why: Scarcity sells, and a sellout grows the list instead of losing the sale.

13 Run the launch emails and switch on light ads.

Why: The warm list and re-reaching past visitors is the cheapest way to convert.

STAGE 5 . Keep it growing (after)

14 Turn on reviews and customer photos, and email past buyers.

Why: Proof sells the next person, and repeat buyers are where the profit is.

15 Review, then decide what to scale (add TikTok Shop when it lands).

Why: Double down on what works instead of guessing.
